

Besuch der Ausstellung „The Land and The Sea“

Am 25.04.2014 besuchte die Klasse 11 A des Abendgymnasiums gemeinsam mit ihrer Englischlehrerin Frau Dux die Galerie Süd (Feuerwache), um sich einen Eindruck über dort ausgestellte Werke des Künstlers Jan Kubon zu verschaffen. Die dort gezeigten Bilder waren Gemälde und Reiseskizzen des Künstlers über die Küste Sünglands aus den Jahren 2007-2014.

Music and literature are some kinds of art. But photography, paintings and sculptures are types of art too. Everyone likes one or another kind more or less. I like music, literature, photography and paintings the most. So it was very interesting for me when I went to “Galerie Süd” in Magdeburg to visit an exhibition.

The exhibition was called “The Land and The Sea” and presented paintings of the artist Jan Kubon. Some of these paintings show a part of a village or town. All paintings are very interesting and each of these is unique. But there is one painting I regard as extraordinary – even for this artist. The title is “Blackbird” and it is a painting of a blackbird.

On the left side there is a green wall. Next to the wall there is a staircase which goes from the wall to the right side. On the third step of the staircase a blackbird is sitting. The blackbird is looking to its right side. A viewer of the painting looks at the bird, which is in the centre of the painting. The colours of the painting are really fascinating. The wall on the left side of the painting looks mostly green but for the colouring there are also used yellow and red in small parts. At the first glance the staircase mostly looks blue but there are used more colours too – like yellow, red and white. The blackbird is mostly black, and its shape is really well painted, and it looks as if the bird is looking at the viewer of the painting with its yellow eye.

I was really fascinated by the colours, their texture and the structure of the painting. It is interesting to look at, and the artist shows a talent for colours. I could look at these colours all day. The bird is an interesting object because it is sitting on a staircase and I ask myself if this staircase is outdoors or indoors. And if the staircase is indoors how will the blackbird get inside? What does the bird do next? I really like it because of its colours and its timeless effect. It is a really interesting and fascinating painting which is definitely worth looking at.

Abschließend bedankt sich die gesamte Klasse 11 A bei ihrer Englischlehrerin für die Möglichkeit, diese interessanten Bilder über die Küste Sünglands betrachten zu können.
